Thrive in a new environment with the supports you need to succeed!

Potential candidates for Promising Futures may:

- » be at risk for low academic performance
- » be at risk for social isolation
- » prefer or learn best from hands on, project-based learning
- » exhibit a strong, influential personality
- » need supports/ flexibility that a traditional school can't provide

New Environment

Small classes

There will be up to 15 students in a class to allow teachers and students to build strong relationships and receive the instruction each student needs.

Hands on, project-based learning

Class-wide projects with opportunities for students to participate across different disciplines, lead other students in learning, and share their strengths.

Individualized learning plan

Teachers and students will work together to create plans where student's interests are taken into consideration. Learning will be rigorous and offer choice for students.

Support

Staff onsite to support mental health needs
Proactive supports & response as needed

Social Workers School Counselors
Psychologists Mental Health Clinicians

Ready for Success

Leadership training

Guest speakers will visit and share their expertise and perspectives during trainings and dialogues.

Internships

Students will have internship opportunities at local businesses or institutions; these internships will offer experiences for students to gauge interest across multiple fields.

Students may still participate in extracurricular activities at their home school.*
